In this town, on the 4th instant, Mr. CALVIN SAWTELL, a native of Vermont, aged about 80 years. A few hours be-fore his death a physician was called. He lodged in the same building in which his school was kept, and was found dead, on Tuesday morning, seated on a bench, at his desk. Mr. Sawtell was a man of inoffensive deportment; intelligent and strictly honest. He was a printer by profession, and pos-sessed many qualifications for that business. He has been known for many years past, as a school teacher, though he occasionally worked at the case. His talents entitled him to more lucrative occupations than those in which he has cen for some time engaged-though none are certainly more orable. - Commercial
